
UNION OF SOCIETIST COMMUNES OF ENTANTHA

Commons Coordination Board

REGULATION

On the Allocation and Management of Personal Resource Points within the USCE
Internal Economy Framework

The Resource Allocation and Equity Act of March 15, 1923

Last Revised: January 17, 2007

Approved by:

Commons Coordination Board of the Union of Societist Communes of Entantha

Date of Enactment:

March 15, 1923

Confidentiality Level:

Public Document

Responsible Department:

USCE Department of Economic Planning and Resource Allocation

Section 1: Purpose and Scope

This regulation governs the allocation and management of personal resource points within the Union of Societist Communes of Entantha (USCE) internal economy framework. The objective of this regulation is to ensure the provision of essential goods necessary for survival, while managing the availability of discretionary consumption based on individual behavior, needs, and circumstances. The system shall be adaptable, responding to changes in individual situations and broader community needs, while safeguarding the basic rights of all individuals within the Union.

Section 2: Resource Allocation

Each individual shall maintain a personal document consisting of a comprehensive ledger, which shall be divided into two primary sections: a resource table and transaction lines. The resource table shall contain columns for four distinct categories of goods:

- Guaranteed Necessities
- Discretionary Goods
- Body and Behavioral Stability Goods

Goods within all categories are collectively owned and distributed by locally elected councils, which oversee regional inventory and equitable access.

Section 3: Guaranteed Necessities

Scope: Absolute rights to survival essentials.

Including:

- Food: Caloric baseline + 20% margin (cultural/religious dietary needs covered).
- Water: Unlimited access to potable water through public infrastructure. No restrictions: for drinking, cooking, hygiene, or emergency reserves.

- Shelter: Private, climate-controlled living space meeting minimum habitability standards. Repairs and utilities are guaranteed without delay.
- Clothing: Annual allocation of basic garments.
- Hygiene: Toiletries and sanitary products provided monthly.

Rules:

- Never restricted, traded, or conditional.
- Surplus is redistributed automatically.

Basic healthcare (preventative, emergency, and essential treatments) is fully covered. Elective procedures (e.g., cosmetic surgery) require Discretionary Goods points.

Section 4: Discretionary Goods & Behavioral Impact

Scope: Non-essential goods and services, adjustable based on contribution and equity.

Including but not limited to:

- Luxury: Gourmet food, bottled water.
- Entertainment: Event tickets, art supplies, games.
- Convenience goods: Pre-packaged meals, branded clothing.
- Housing upgrades (e.g., private apartments, dachas) may be requested via cooperative pools or individual merit.

Impacted by:

Positive Factors:

- Employment Status: Including job type, associated benefits, and work-related conditions such as the ability to work due to health or social circumstances.
- Health Conditions: Considerations for both physical and mental health. Requests for accommodations regarding mental well-being, emotional support, or other personal challenges shall be considered on a case-by-case basis by a local specialist.

- Special Awards or Recognitions: Any awards or recognitions that positively impact resource allocation.

Negative Factors:

- Anti-social behavior, which is defined as material harm, including but not limited to violence, theft, coercion, or deliberate sabotage of communal resources; subject to local review with emphasis on personal circumstances, may reduce access to non-essential goods.

Rules:

- Systemic barriers or trauma always override penalties.
 - Discretionary Goods points can always be gifted, traded, transferred. No other type of points can be.
-

Section 5: Body and Behavioral Stability Diminishing Goods

Scope: Controlled substances and consumables known to reduce bodily or mental function over time.

Includes:

- Alcohol
- Tobacco and nicotine products
- Non-medical intoxicants (recreational drugs)
- Excessively high-caffeine or stimulant products

Rules:

- Each individual receives a monthly allocation of points specific to this category.
- These points may be voluntarily and irreversibly converted (1:1) into Discretionary Goods points at any time.
- Access is automatically revoked for individuals under behavioral restriction (see Section 7).

- Medical or therapeutic use of otherwise restricted substances must be approved via official health exception pathways and will not draw from this category.
-

Section 6: Transaction Documentation

Each transaction involving the expenditure of resource points must be recorded on the transaction lines of the personal document. Required entries shall include:

- Vendor's address
 - Quantity of points expended
 - Authorized signature of the cashier
-

Section 7: Behavioral Compliance and Autonomy

Individuals exhibiting detrimental behavior, as defined in Section 4, shall be restricted from accessing Body and Behavioral Stability Diminishing Goods, visiting leisure establishments, or purchasing recreational substances, including alcohol and tobacco. However, guaranteed necessities (food, water, shelter) shall never be affected by individual behavior. These fundamental needs will always be guaranteed.

Individuals will have the opportunity to request reassessment of their situation based on new information, changes in behavior, or evolving personal circumstances. Requests for accommodations related to emotional or social needs (e.g., emotional support, social integration, or mental diseases) shall be taken into account and handled with sensitivity and respect for individual autonomy.

Section 8: Community and Collective Needs

In addition to individual needs, resource allocation shall consider broader community needs. Regions or groups with higher collective challenges (such as poverty, health disparities, or systemic issues) shall be prioritized for resource distribution when necessary. Periodic community feedback and direct democracy processes shall be utilized to ensure that collective needs are addressed equitably.

Section 9: Enforcement and Review

Compliance with these regulations shall be monitored by designated authorities within the Union. Periodic reviews will assess the effectiveness of the system to ensure it remains equitable, flexible, and responsive to both individual and community needs. Monthly reevaluations of individual resource allocations shall be conducted based on statistical data and data-driven analysis of current needs, behavior, and other relevant factors. While feedback from citizens is valued, the system's adjustments will primarily rely on objective data to ensure consistency and fairness. These reviews will ensure the system evolves and adapts over time, continuing to uphold the core values of the Union of Societist Communes of Entantha.

Resource Allocation Methodology:

Monthly reevaluations of individual resource allocations are determined by a transparent, data-driven equation crafted collaboratively by a council of locally elected intellectual representatives. This council convenes monthly in the capital to refine and approve the allocation formula, with membership rotating through monthly elections to ensure broad and fresh community participation. Additionally, local authorities retain discretionary flexibility within defined parameters to address unique regional circumstances.

Issued and Enacted by

The Commons Coordination Board of the Union of Societist Communes of Entantha

Date: January 17, 2007

Notes

The Resource Allocation and Equity Act has undergone continuous revision since its enactment in 1923, with significant updates made in response to evolving standards of social equity. Early drafts of the document contained terminology now considered offensive, such as references to racial minorities and individuals with disabilities in derogatory terms. These revisions aim to reflect the Union's ongoing commitment to inclusive, egalitarian values.